BOARD OF EDUCATION CANDIDATES

(speeches condensed from recent meeting at Tularcitos School)

Every one of the six candidates for the Board of Education of Carmel Unified School District appears well-qualified and worthy. The voters' choice is the relatively happy one of choosing the best among a superior group.

Next week we shall present the qualifications for school board membership prepared as a public service by Delta Kappa Gamma, a national honor society for women in Education.

May we suggest that you save these condensed speeches to compare, next week, with these professionally formulated recommendations? Editorial comment on the speeches, and on questions and answers which followed them, will also be reserved for next week, because of space limitations in this current issue. --BB

ROXANNA BLANKS, (MRS. HERBERT BLANKS, HOUSEWIFE, INCUMBENT)

Mrs. Blanks began by saying she had dreaded being the first to speak, but knew she would be whether program chairman Joe Ricupero ordered the list alphabetically, by age ("I'm the oldest"), by sex ("I'm the ONLY woman") or by several other criteria. She had thought of as possibilities. Soon, Ricupero interrupted (with his usual gentle charm, as his various Valley fans will testify) to remind her that only 5 minutes were allotted to each candidate and she had already used 2 of hers. Mrs. Blanks then summed up her qualifications and interest rapidly, saying that she has already 1 1/2 years experience on the Board, "and I'm just beginning to understand all that is involved. I have time to give, being careful to avoid other kinds of volunteer work nowadays which require time; I have three children, the youngest in high school. I did considerable work with youth throughout the years of my children's growth--cub scouts, PTA work, in fact the whole gamut.

"I am the only woman on the Board or among the candidates, and I feel that there is definitely a place for a woman's viewpoint amongst the others. I would fulfill my responsibilities to the children, to the teachers and to the school administration, and to the taxpayers. I would keep myself well-informed on the issues."

To Ricupero's next statement, that she had now used only 3 minutes of her allotted time, Mrs. Blanks replied, jokingly, "You scared me." "Giuseppe's" fans will be able to picture the twinkle with which he replied, "I don't usually have that effect on women!"

(SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGIST, INCUMBENT)

"We each have 5 minutes, so we are bound to confine ourselves to generalities," he began. "Our children are growing up as if on the edge of a volcano, in a world far more complex than the one we have known. They need a solid preparation far more than we did. Most of all, perhaps, they need to learn to think constructively and critically...."

"We owe the taxpayers the best education we can provide for their dollars spent, but good education does not come cheap; it is more expensive each day!"

He said he would like to discuss some of the issues currently facing the board with which he is familiar: "The Board rejected the recommendations of the Citizens Committee in asking for a 50¢ over-ride tax. The Committee had recommended that we ask for 75¢. Hence it will be necessary to pare $40 per student from the budget for next year.... This during a year where we are facing new problems with the annexation of Captain Cooper and Palo Colorado districts, necessitating more expensive transportation.... To some extent, then, we cannot avoid moving backwards."

"I know that these are not popular remarks to be making, but I did feel and still do that we of the Board should have presented our case directly to the voters. As you may gather, my viewpoint has not always been that of the majority on the Board."

Snyder concluded, however, that he felt the entire board was in harmony on what was perhaps the most important job facing them--that of "seeking out and acquiring the most able and qualified newsuperintendent available to the district."

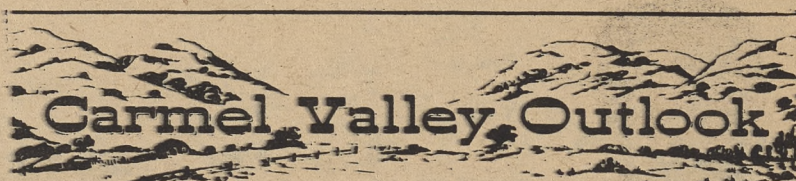

JAMES NIELSEN

(ATTORNEY)

"To explain why I'm a candidate, I will have to explain what I think about Education. I believe that the first duty of Education is not to fit or 'adjust' students to existing patterns, but rather to encourage individuality. We shouldn't be trying to raise citizens who will be 'interchangeable parts' with everyone else in our society; we need citizens who will challenge--and where necessary, change--the patterns of society.... We should teach subject matter and self-imposed discipline."

Nielsen said that Reading "is the fundamental tool by which we not only learn, but actually exist...."

"For many students, secondary schools are terminal. Many who go to college will do so only briefly, and without much good effect. To be useful citizens, those who will not go beyond

RALPH THOMPSON

(ATTORNEY)

"I differ from the other candidates in that I work from 7:00 in the morning until 6:00 at night, have a large family, and lots of responsibilities. But I feel I owe a lot to the school district that is educating my children. I attended Colgate University, and was one of the few in my group to have graduated from a public school. Therefore I thought a lot about the difference in the effect of a public school education as compared to a private school education; I'm very much for the public schools."

"I don't have a great campaign platform; I feel that the present board has done a good job."

"We should prepare 95% of our children for college, although it is true that the other 5% are entitled to the right treatment, too."

"I don't want Jayvee sports at the High School given up unless it can be proven to me that we cannot afford them."

"With boys, you've got to keep them busy. If they're not busy, they're in trouble. Ours don't even come home to study unless they're half-tired!"

Mr. Thompson said that the greatest advantages of such activities as Little League and Pony League are that these "keep them busy." He helped to found Pony League in Carmel.

"I readily admit that I don't know 'all the answers', but as a lawyer I feel it's better not to talk before you know the facts."

RICHARD ROBINSON,

(BIOLOGY INSTR. AT MPC)

National survival demands excellence in Education, said Robinson, and money in itself doesn't necessarily produce quality in Education.

"Ours is an area which attracts unusual people; we are bound to have many children with great potential. We have some outstanding teachers. Yet our district is not realizing its potential...."

"We can lead, in terms of educational philosophy, and in what our students accomplish."

Robinson said California is undergoing "dynamic growth and inspiring change". He hopes that the great expansion in population can mean that we build an "educational system second to none." Robinson is the father of four children.

substance, not merely in name. Our students should become good citizens and know how to solve problems, not merely "adjust" to them....

"The district should keep the voters informed about issues. For example, I agree with Dr. Snyder that the underlying problems concerning the over-ride tax should have been put before the public. It is the duty of the Board of Education to keep receptive ears, as well."

In last week's OUTLOOK, a quip was credited to Paul Cooper that results of the traffic survey on CV Road proved that "people in the Valley are traveling a lot and in all directions." And that is a perfect introduction for this week's column.

Ursula and Howard Swigart of Arboleda Lane are off on a six month tour of Europe, and the Paul Porters are home from Mexico....The Carl Stahls are home from Hawaii and bring greetings from Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Tosh Tadlock to the many friends they made while living in the Valley during their assignment to the Navy Line School... Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart of La Rancheria have returned from a holiday in Mexico and also Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Chappell,The Drew Dexters are enjoying life in Palm Springs and Arizona.... Upon completing a tour of 22 cities publicizing "Lawrence of Arabia", Betty and John Woolfenden are bound for the French Pyrenees and the filming of another picture.... Passengers on a ship bound for Tokyo that left San Francisco last week were General and Mrs. Robert O. Bare.

Irene and Stuart Fletcher have sold their house on Valley Vista Drive and are making their home in Santa Cruz. The Fletchers, who were leaders of numerous civic and social organizations, have promised to return often to attend meetings and visit with their many friends.

CV GARDEN ASSOCIATION

The Carmel Valley Garden Association will meet April 5, Friday, at 8:00 p. m. in the multipurpose room of Tularcitos School. Dr. Lowell Adams has announced an intriguing "C. B. C. V. -- E. P. A." title for his topic as guest speaker. Dr. Adams, who resides on Upper Circle, was a naturalist for many years with the U. S. Division of Forestry and for Johns Hopkins. He is presently doing research for the University of California School of Medicine, under a grant at the Hastings Wildlife Refuge in the Upper Valley. He has just returned from the annual North American Wildlife Conference in Detroit where he conducted a seminar on telemetry.

FIRE, AID CALLS

The James Kelly family were occupants of a house owned by Robert Harbort at 54 Upper Circle that was badly damaged by fire Friday. Four pieces of Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department equipment and twelve firemen fought the blaze, thought to have been caused by faulty wiring. Damage to house and contents was estimated at $15,000.00.

Members of the Volunteer ambulance squad were called to Reuben's early Sunday morning when Sara May Burkman of 1155 Larkin in Monterey suffered a mild heart attack.

TO OUR NEW CARMEL READERS:

This issue, like our last, brings you the new "OUTLOOK on Carmel" as seen by Marjorie Lloyd. Mrs. Lloyd, former editor of the Carmel weekly, has welcomed the opportunity to report on her home community under editorial policies that would be representative, tolerant, and constructive. We kid ourselves not, however, that one paper can be all things to two communities as diverse as Carmel Valley and Carmel-by-the-Sea. Whether we expand our coverage and develop a separate Carmel edition depends upon your response. The coupon on the left offers a wonderful means of encouragement.

WHAT'S TO BECOME OF SUNSET?

Members of the Carmel Planning Commission and trustees of the Carmel Unified School District seem to be in accord as to what will be the future of Sunset School, namely that the city purchase the 3.9 acre site and buildings.

Last week, planning commissioners recommended that the city purchase the property and develop it as a civic or cultural center.

The next day, trustees heard a report recommending the school district find out if the city is interested in acquiring Sunset and its 700-seat auditorium.

In the general plan for Carmel, Sunset School is designated for development as a community center.

Capital outlay funds are accruing to the city from the three per cent tax on all transient lodgings within Carmel and the city council has asked the planning commission to recommend possible uses for this revenue, expected to be $26,000 this year.

The commission last week gave priority to the purchase of Sunset School. In addition, Commissioner Hugh Smith favored sale of both the city's corporation yard and city hall, situated in the business district, and that funds so acquired also be used to purchase the school.

The insurance value placed on Sunset School buildings is $604,000. This represents 92% of the value of the structures on the 42-lot site. At current prices, the value of the lots could be $400,000. These two figures produce an estimated value of the site and facility in the vicinity of a million dollars.

YATES, NEILL

Sunset School is now a school district problem. Trustees George V. Yates and Clayton Neill Jr. were appointed a committee to discover means of disposing of the property located south of Carmel's shopping district. Last week they recommended the school district find out if the city is interested in acquiring the property, also that it would be to the best advantage of the district to abandon Sunset and build a new elementary school on district-owned land next to Carmel Junior High School.

Carmel, for some years, has been faced with the necessity for providing new quarters for its police and street departments, both inadequately housed.

FORMER CHURCH

Carmel's city hall is an old church facility with part of the structure remodelled into city administration offices. The city council meets where the congregation formerly worshipped. On the council chamber walls are displayed valuable paintings of the city-owned memorial collection of the work of deceased artists who have added lustre to the name of the city as a cultural center, but above arches high and unlined is a peaked redwood roof which even the council once decided was "for the squirrels."

Planning commissioners, last week, sitting under this creaky roof, envisioned police and street departments, also city administrative offices, adequately housed at Sunset School; city storage areas abundantly provided on the same site; lots of off-street parking. They did not picture where the city council might meet but did suggest the rental of Sunset Auditorium might provide city revenue.

AUDITORIUM

Sunset's auditorium has been a recurrent headache to the school district for almost 30 years. It was built in 1933 and the following year passage of the Field Act, which demanded earthquake security for such buildings, made it non-conforming. It still is, even though it is steel framed.

Since 1951, too, the school district has received complaints from the Carmel fire department about fire hazards in the auditorium. Last year, Deputy State Fire Marshal Leon B. Baldwin Jr. reported "greater than normal fire and life hazard" existed in the auditorium and suggested installation of a fire alarm and sprinkler system.

"J. S. BAT"

School trustees advertised for bids for this work, then cancelled the project until such time as the future of the school was decided. Last week Yates and Neill recommended the district abandon the school and find out if the city would like to buy it, but did not mention Johann Sebastian Bat whose swoops delight Bach Festival audiences in the lofty-ceilinged auditorium.

The Carmel planning commission would like the city to exchange its squirrels for the school district bat.

TIM AN EAGLE SCOUT

Tim Hudson of Carmel Boy Scout Troop 32 attained the rank of Eagle Scout last week. He is the elder son of Monterey County Supervisor Thomson Jay Hudson and Mrs. Hudson of Point Lobos.

NEDDERSENS TO MOVE

As soon as Carmel Valley Manor is completed, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Neddersen will move from Hatton Fields Mesa to the retirement home. However, Mr. Neddersen plans to continue as secretary of the Carmel Sanitary District after he becomes a Valley resident.

Whatever the city council eventually decides, one thing is sure, the character of Carmel will not be changed, and that is why the city has a master plan, though the latter does not mention wildlife.

Scheduled at the request of Mayor Eben Whittlesey was a discussion of Sunset School on the agenda of the city council last night (Wednesday). The outcome will be reported herein next week.

... Just an Idea ... 'Not a Formal Proposal! ... So Don't Go Up in Smoke Yet, Huh?

Reaction of Area Planners to Map Above

(A STATEMENT PREPARED BY HALL AND GOODHUE BY REQUEST FROM THE OUTLOOK)

The County study of an alternate route for the extra lanes for the Carmel Valley Road is a constructive suggestion. It would not, however, be the type of road we have proposed. The Carmel Valley Road can be made an even more beautiful road than it is today.

In designing the road, we must think primarily of what we will see from the road. Will it give us a sense of the beauty and majesty of the Valley? A road that is lined with houses will not do this, whether it has one way traffic or two.

It is important therefore to put the road in a location where it will have permanent open areas alongside it, as the present road does. The new road should not be on the flat Valley floor, and should not allow development between it and the present road.

In the County's tentative revised plan, the new road has been put behind the houses which exist along the present road in such a way that houses and land for further development remain between the two roads.

This was not the idea. The present County study would tend to intensify the development between the two roads.

Instead, the new road should be built alongside the existing road. We have studied the section of the road between Valley Hills and the Farm Center, on the site, and we are convinced that a perfectly beautiful scenic parkway with separated lanes and lookouts can be built--NOW--alongside the present Carmel Valley Rd. with practically no disturbance of existing homes.

We thoroughly agree with the Road Commissioner that the planlines for such a road or any other must be established very soon. New houses and new subdivisions are under construction right now. Each new development ties our hands tighter and tighter.

Part of the beauty of the present road is that here and there the road rises, and affords panoramic views. These places are where we have our scenic outlooks. We should develop changes of level along the road to increase interest. A scenic road should not be perfectly flat, any more than it should be perfectly straight.

The road must be designed on the site by picking out the trees and rocks and the views which must be preserved.

The fundamental decision which must be made by the residents of Carmel Valley is whether they want a beautiful road enough to be bold and decisive about it.

MAP TO BE SHOWN AT ROAD MEETING

The Carmel Valley Road Committee is scheduled to report its findings at a meeting of all interested Valley property owners tonight at 8:00 at the CV Community Center.

For the convenience of those who attend--and at the risk of befuddling those who do not--the OUTLOOK has prepared (above) a simplified copy of the tentative plans just released by the County Road Department for the study of property owners. This "new concept" was prepared in response to an idea originally advanced by Area Planners Hall & Goodhue.

The County's original proposal (which will come before the County Planning Commission for the fourth and undoubtedly final time in mid-May) calls for a widening of the existing Carmel Valley Road to a conventional four lane highway.

The plans above are for a second two-lane road to be added south of the existing Carmel Valley Road, with frequent cross-overs. The existing road would then become one-way -- two lanes, westbound. The new road would also be one-way, eastbound.

Examination of these revised plans would seem to indicate three things:

1. Deep cuts into the hills to the north of existing Carmel Valley Rd. would not be necessary, as they are in the County's present, formal proposal for widening the existing road to four lanes.
2. Eastbound or westbound, drivers could get onto Carmel Valley Rd. without having to cross in front of oncoming traffic by simply turning left from any cross street in order to go in either direction.
3. A network of small streets such as the above, on the Valley floor, would tend to encourage and facilitate subdivision, and at less expense to subdividers than would be incurred were there only one county road running the length of the Valley floor. There are, of course, widely differing opinions in this Valley as to whether subdivision should or should not be facilitated!

... RESULTS OF ROAD COMMITTEE TRAFFIC COUNT ...

A traffic count was taken on Carmel Valley Road and also on the Los Laureles Grade Road on January 9th, 1963, from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. The work was done by the Alternate Route group, headed by Lew McCreery, in cooperation with personnel of the County Road Department.

Previous traffic counts conducted by the County had used electric tape, thus recording only the total number of cars using the road. The Alternate Route group felt that the total use of Carmel Valley Road might be materially reduced were alternate routes constructed over the hills to the north, through Canada Segundo and/or Berwick Canyon, to the Salinas Highway.

The January traffic count was made by stopping every car and inquiring its origin and destination. It was felt that those cars traveling to the Carmel-Pacific Grove area would continue to use Carmel Valley Rd. in any case, but that cars bound for Monterey, Marina, or Salinas would probably use alternate routes if these were available.

Valley residents who helped with the traffic count included Clayton Neill, Jr., Lou Gardner, Elmer Uzzell, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hermann, Luis Wolter, Lee Otter, John Otter and Robert V. McDonald.

The table below summarizes the findings.

Lew McCreery wished to stress that his Alternate Route group is only one of four different groups working for the Road Committee on various subjects (Planlines, Finances and Scenic Routes comprise the other three.) He also stressed that his committee's analysis of their figures could not be more than an amateur one.

"Our amateur analysis does tend to point out that some of the traffic on Carmel Valley Rd. would utilize an alternate route through Canada Segundo Canyon if such existed," he said. "But if traffic continues to increase at its present rate such a route, if built, would reach a saturation point within some given number of years.

"Then it would be necessary to enlarge the alternate route, to enlarge the Valley Highway, or to add another alternate route-- through Berwick Canyon.

"We are coming to the sad and reluctant conclusion that four lanes through the Valley will be necessary in one form or another. We certainly hope for the best. We were very encouraged by Tom Hudson's statement last January that Carmel Valley Rd. deserves as much consideration as the Coast Highway. We believe it does too. We would hate to see our lovely area end up like San Fernando Valley!"

'Mr. Mike Night'

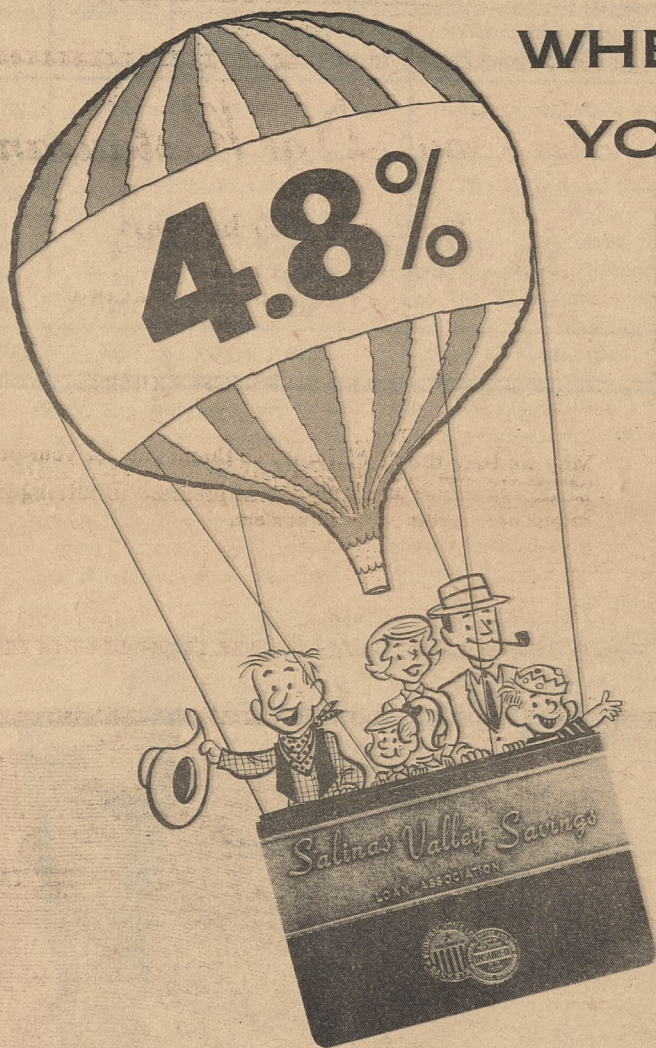

A Fashion show featuring swimwear and Easter costumes, scads of door prizes and valuable items to be auctioned off, plus an evening of dancing to a live combo band are the attractions of "Mr. Mike" Night, scheduled for 8:00 p. m. Saturday at Carmel Valley Inn. A $1.50 donation per person covers the entire evening's cost, with proceeds to go to provide shelter for "Mr. Mike", a palomino Shetland pony soon to arrive in Carmel Valley as a gift to be used in the training and education of the retarded children at Children's House.

The gay posters now to be seen about the Village announcing the event were made—replete with real horsehair—by Mrs. Thomas G. Cullen.

THE PLANNERS

"Lest we all take ourselves too seriously," the above cartoon was submitted by John Otter of Schulte Rd., a member of the CV Road Committee and a State Forester. "I'm not deriding the efforts of the Planners—I consider myself one of them" said he, "but it seems to me we get too wrapped up in these things—like an ant that crawls on top of a pebble and thinks he's scaled Mount Everest.... There's nothing wrong with Carmel Valley that raising the price of gasoline by $5 per gallon wouldn't cure," Otter concluded.

CV Little League Cleanup Day

All interested fathers of CV Little Leaguers (team members and tryouts) will be most welcome at a meeting of the Valley's Little League officials Friday, at 8:00 p. m. in the CV Firehouse on Via Contenta.

All boys and their fathers are also "invited" to a work session at the Little League Field by the Firehouse on Saturday afternoon, April 6, at 1:00 p. m. Dr. Boyd Huff, who has been president of Carmel Valley Little League for the past three years, announces that it will be necessary for all team members and tryouts to "do their share" before they can be issued a registration card for this season. Wheelbarrow, shovels, and especially weeders should be brought to the workday session.

League Vice-president Pete Danielson, speaking of the Saturday workday session, added, "We hope to see more fathers this year, and not so many orphans."

YOU'RE INVITED!

AUTOGRAPH PARTY

Jim and Corene Smith of the Thunderbird Shop issue a cordial invitation to an Autograph Party next Tuesday afternoon, April 9, from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. The Thunderbird Shop is located next door to the postoffice in Carmel Valley Village.

Honored autographers will be co-authors Vinson Brown and Carlos Mundt, whose book "Stars and Outer Space Made Easy" has just been released.

Carlos Mundt, a Carmel Valley resident, retired three years ago after 35 years as Professor of Astronomy and Mathematics at San Francisco State. He says that this newest of four books he has authored is "aimed at any uninitiated person who is interested in learning about astronomy in an elementary fashion."

Other interests of Carlos Mundt's are amateur radio and investments. One of his previously published books has as its subject the Mathematics of Finance. He is a licensed investment counselor, but doesn't work at this aspect of his varied interests too actively, explaining dryly, "Most people seem to prefer to make their own blunders."

Collecting antique clocks is another of his hobbies.

Co-author Vinson Brown, (M. A., Stanford University), has written 13 published books, of which 10 deal with natural history.

Brown's book, "Warriors of the Rainbow" was written in collaboration with an Eskimo Indian, William Willoya. Illustrated by native drawings in color, this volume is "dedicated to freedom and justice for all the Indian peoples, with all the profits from the sale of this book to be donated to this cause."

About Our Cover:

Photographer George T. C. Smith was asked to dig through his mountainous piles of photographic negatives for something that would indicate Spring in Carmel Valley--any year. He came up with this layout, which ran some years ago in the old Carmel Valley News. The children in the center of the page would be teen-agers by now; Georgie could not even remember who they were, but they'd hardly be happy about the reprint. Only the flowers are the same each year!

A new pair of youngsters was chosen, from this year's crop. They are Molly and Zane Gregory, youngest of the eight fine children of Lcdr. and Mrs. George Gregory of Carmel Valley.

WELL, WELL, WELL!

WHY is the chlorine level in our swimming pool so low? We can keep it that way, safely, because we change the water so often. We can afford to, see, because we have our own well at 100-acre SADDLE MOUNTAIN RANCH. Come visit us this weekend, and give a serious thought to joining the other good families who will become members of our proposed "Los Ricos" country club this summer. Four miles up Carmel Valley, turn at Schulte Rd.
